

About SLATT

The U.S. Department of Justice, Bureau of Justice Assistance, or BJA, recognizes that today's law enforcement community faces a more sophisticated terrorist threat than ever before. To address this threat, BJA funds the SLATT Program to provide critical pre-incident terrorism and criminal extremism education for law enforcement professionals.

The SLATT Program is dedicated to providing law enforcement with the training and resources necessary to effectively prevent terrorist acts.

The SLATT Program features nationally recognized experts in both domestic and international terrorism. Terrorism-related topics are constantly researched and reviewed. A cornerstone of the SLATT Program is the continual curriculum updates that address current issues and trends.

The SLATT Web site features introductory online training sessions on terrorism/criminal extremism-related topics for law enforcement professionals, as well as updates to materials distributed at SLATT workshops.

On behalf of the Bureau of Justice Assistance, thank you for taking the time to visit our site. We hope you continue to find these resources useful.
